How to get there

Driving Directions

The main road leading to the airport from Moscow is the Kashirskoye highway. Take this road southwards and merge onto Domodedovo Airport Road &ndash, which leads to the terminals.

Rail

Paveletsky Station is connected to Moscow Domodedovo International Airport via the high-speed, non-stop Aeroexpress train (tel: 800 700 33 77; www.aeroexpress.ru/en). This takes around 40-50 minutes and costs rub340. Some airlines provide passengers with free tickets for the Aeroexpress.

Commuter trains (tel: (499) 262 1628; eng.rzd.ru), which are cheaper but slower (around 1 hour 10 minutes) also link the airport with the city centre.

Bus

Autoline (tel: (495) 786 2323; autoline.ru/en) offers an express bus service (bus 308) between Moscow Domodedovo International Airport and the Domodedovskaya underground station on the southern edge of the city (journey time: 25-30 minutes). Tickets can be purchased at a counter near the domestic arrivals area of the airport.
Shuttle
There is a 24-hour minibus shuttle service between the Domodedovskaya underground station and the airport (journey time: 25-30 minutes; ₽6100). Payment should be made to the driver when boarding the minibus.

Taxi
Special Taxi desks are located in the domestic arrivals hall (desk 231 and 232), in the international arrivals hall (desk 1 and 2) and in the public area of the airport terminal (desk 185). The journey time into central Moscow is about 90 minutes, and fares are prepaid at the taxi desks within Arrivals – use of unofficial taxis is strongly advised against. Fares vary according to traffic conditions. For more information, contact the taxi enquiry hotline (tel: (495) 967 8363).

Car Parking
There is parking space for more than 5,000 cars at the airport. Short-term parking is available adjacent to the terminals, while long-stay spaces are situated at the railway station and next to Domodedovo Airhotel. Limited short-term VIP parking can be found at the international terminal.
