Baku – a brief overview

Azerbaijan, which rejoices in the poetic nickname “Land of Fire,” has always been a center of trade with Central Asia. The capital city is Baku, “City of Winds,” located on the Abşeron Peninsula in the Caspian Sea. The city population numbers some two million and rising sharply. İçəri Şəhər, the historic center of Baku, has been a UNESCO World Heritage Site since 2000. Its picturesque narrow streets are lined with well-preserved palaces, mosques and fortifications.

Some monumental buildings still remain from the period of Soviet rule, including the presidential palace. The skyline, however, is now dominated by futuristic skyscrapers, the most famous of which must be the ensemble completed in 2012 of the three gracefully curved Flame Towers rising 190 meters into the sky. The oil wells off the coast in the Caspian Sea are the country’s (and also Baku’s) main source of income. Baku is a city with a young and exceedingly hospitable population.

Azerbaijan
General Information

Country overview
Azerbaijan is situated at the meeting point of Europe and Asia. It borders the Russian Federation, Georgia, Armenia, Iran and, through the exclave of the Nakhichevan Autonomous Republic, Turkey.

The highest elevation is Bazar Dyuzi (4480 m). The longest river is the Kura with a length of almost 1500 kilometers, which flows into the Caspian Sea and is dammed in the Mingachevir reservoir (Mingetschaur), forming the largest artificial lake in the country.

Geography
Azerbaijan is bordered by the Russian Federation, Georgia, Iran and Armenia. Much of Southwestern Azerbaijan in the ethnically Armenian region of Nagorno-Karabakh is occupied by Armenian forces following the Armenia-Azerbaijan war (1988-1994).

Azerbaijan also includes the exclave of Nakhchivan, which is located between Turkey, Iran and Armenia.

General knowledge

Key facts
Capital: Baku

Language
The official language is Azerbaijani. Russian was the official language until 1991 and is still widely used. About 14 other minority languages from four different language families are also spoken. English is not widely spoken as a foreign language – only in Baku and other major cities is it spoken occasionally.

Currency
Azeri New Manat (AZN)= 100 gopik. Notes are in denominations of 100, 50, 20, 10, 5 and 1 AZN. Coins are in denominations of 50, 20, 10, 5, 3 and 1 gopik.

Travel etiquette

How to fit in

Social Conventions
Azerbaijans are very generous and like to give presents, especially flowers, souvenirs and small treats. To reciprocate this friendliness, it’s best to pack some small items in your luggage. Local women usually keep very much in the background. They serve food to foreign guests, but almost never take part in the meal. They’re happy to receive a bouquet of flowers, but you shouldn’t try to involve them in conversations.

Women are expected to dress modestly. For both women and men, shorts and swimwear are only appropriate on the beach.

People greet one another with a handshake. Business cards are presented not only at business meetings but usually also as part of the first personal introduction.

Smoking
Since 2017, smoking has been prohibited in most public buildings, including schools and universities, hotels, theaters, cinemas and museums. Smoking is also prohibited on public transport, bus stops, playgrounds and beaches.

Tipping
Restaurant staff expect tips, as do taxi drivers.

Health

Food & Drink
All water should be regarded as being a potential health risk. Water used for drinking, brushing teeth or making ice should have first been boiled or otherwise sterilised. Some parts of Baku have their own water supply from natural mineral springs. Milk is pasteurised and dairy products are safe for consumption. Only eat well-cooked meat and fish. Vegetables should be cooked and fruit peeled.

Other Risks
Vaccinations against hepatitis B and tuberculosis are sometimes advised. There may be some risk of meningitis, tick-borne encephalitis and leishmaniasis. Rabies is present in some areas. For those at high risk, vaccination before arrival should be considered. If you are bitten, seek medical advice without delay.

Phone calls & Internet

Telephone/Mobile Telephone

Dialing code: +994

Telephone
International calls from Azerbaijan may be dialed directly from Baku and some other towns throughout the country.

Mobile Telephone
Roaming agreements exist with most international mobile phone companies.
Coverage is mostly limited to the capital and main towns and is non-existent in many mountain areas.

Internet

Available in all cities and towns.

Qız Qalası (Maiden Tower)

Situated in the Old City, this 30-meter-high limestone tower is one of Baku’s landmarks. The oldest sections date back to the 5th century, others to the 12th century. It probably belonged to the city fortifications, which no longer exist in the area around the tower. To date, neither the year of construction nor the function of the tower has been completely established. Inside, historical displays and photos can be seen. The view from the top of the tower is spectacular.

Cümə məscidi (Juma Mosque)

Not all of the Old City’s mosques are recognizable as such, but that’s not a problem with the Juma Mosque (or “Friday Mosque”). Its minaret and magnificent exterior make it one of the most beautiful in the city. The building dates back to the 15th century, but it only acquired its present appearance in the course of reconstruction 100 years ago.

Mixayıl Arxangel kilsəsi (Church of Michael the Archangel)

You can recognize this Russian Orthodox church in Yasamal by its distinctive onion tower. The iconostasis is richly decorated, and the interior frescoes have been lovingly restored.

Zargar Palan

Opening times:
Şəhidlər Xiyabanı (Martyrs’ Lane)

The cemetery and monument site commemorates the victims of the war between Armenia and Azerbaijan over the Nagorno-Karabakh region and the victims of the Soviet invasion of Baku on the 20th of January 1990. Marble slabs line the avenue, and commemorations are held here to mark the anniversary. The best way to reach the site is by the rack railway, the upper station of which is very close by. The observation deck is also on the hill. It offers a beautiful view of the Old City of Baku and the oil rigs.

Şirvanşahlar Sarayi Kompleksi (The Palace of the Shirvanshahs)

You will find this restored building complex at the highest point of the Old City. On the terraced grounds, you can find the residential palace as well as the palace mosque, the Mausoleum of Seyid Yahya Bakuvi (dervish mausoleum), the Bailov stones, the hammam and the burial chamber of the Shirvanshah dynasty. The Divankhana, a rotunda and arcade with pointed arches, is especially picturesque.

Heydər Aliyev Mərkəzi (Heydər Aliyev Cultural Center)

The cultural center was built in honor of Heydar Aliyev (1923-2003), President of Azerbaijan from 1993 to 2003, and inaugurated in 2012. The imposing structure, designed by star architect Zaha Hadid, doesn’t follow straight lines. Instead, its contours all seem to be in a state of flow. The center of the building houses a museum dedicated to the history of Azerbaijan and the life’s work of Heydar Aliyev.

Taze Bey Baths

This beautiful bath was built in 1886. It was the first bathhouse in Baku to be built following European models. Unlike the oriental hammams, this bath included quiet, secluded rooms. The bath was completely restored in 2003. Besides the baths, peelings and massages are also offered. The bath also features a restaurant with Oriental and European cuisine.

Nizami Gəncəvi adına Milli Azərbaycan ədəbiyyatı muzeyi (Museum of Literature)

Just outside the city walls, to the east of the city center, the Museum of Literature is housed in a truly magnificent building dating from 1850. You can easily recognize it, because there are statues of the most important poets of Azerbaijan underneath the arches of its facade. The exhibits of the museum’s collection range from the Middle Ages to the present day. They originate from Azerbaijan, Russia and the Far East and include manuscripts and miniatures.

Shopping in Baku

Key Areas

Baku’s main shopping districts lie between Nizami (Torgovaya) Street and Fountain Square near the Old City. The pedestrian street is also lined with cafés and restaurants. The Old City’s backstreets are filled with atmospheric (though touristy) bazaar stalls, if you want to pick up a hand-woven kilim-style rug or copper tray.

Markets

There are several daily farmers’ markets, selling fresh as well as dried food, herbs and spices, including the Baki Takhil Bazar, Aliyar Aliyev Street, and 8 Km Bazar, Jamshid Nakhchivanski Street. Seasonal markets take place throughout the year in various locations, including one in the Teze Bazar, Nasimi district.

Shopping Centres

The AF Mall, 34 Samed Vurgun Street, is one of Baku’s newest, with eateries and a rooftop pool in addition to an upmarket selection of boutiques and stores. Opposite the Park Inn Hotel is the Park Bulvar Mall, with a huge range of shops, fast-food outlets, a cinema, bowling alley and planetarium.

Restaurants in Baku

Everyday Azerbaijani cuisine fuses oriental and Caucasian culinary traditions. It is based on kabab (shashlik), bread and salad with fresh regional ingredients, deliciously seasoned with fresh herbs – small meals like this are available at every Corner. Restaurant dining is a festive experience and almost always includes several courses. The meal starts with a range of colorful appetizers, followed by grilled meats, usually spicy, and is rounded off with tea and sweets such as halva (made from oil seeds, sugar and honey) or paxlava (sweet pastries). The Old City is home to many Azerbaijani restaurants. You can also try out a number of restaurants with Georgian, Turkish and Western European menus.

Nightlife
Nightlife in Baku

The overwhelming majority of the population in Azerbaijan are Muslim, which of course also affects everyday life in Baku. Alcohol is served despite this. In the summer, you can stroll through the city center or along the beach promenade and take part in karaoke singing, for example. Since the country's independence, countless bars and clubs have opened, both in the Old City and outside the city walls – though sometimes you have to climb down a few dark steps into a cellar to reach your destination. A visit to the caravanserais, the merchants' accommodations in the city center, takes you back to an Orient of bygone times. Here, you can listen to mugham music and watch belly dancing performances while you eat.

Mugham Club

Mugham is the traditional music of Azerbaijan. It has Persian and Arab roots and is considered to be a forerunner of jazz. This restaurant is one of the best spots in Baku to experience this music live in a palatial setting while enjoying Azerbaijani cuisine.

Evening excursion to the burning mountain

Evening excursion to the burning mountain

Azerbaijan is also known as the “Land of Fire,” and from the slopes of Yanar Dağ (Fire Mountain), it’s easy to see why. For more than 1000 years now, gas from natural deposits has been seeping from a crack in the earth’s crust, sending flames leaping three meters into the air above the limestone hillside. A rare natural spectacle at any time, it is particularly impressive at dusk.

9 a.m.: Four Seasons Hotel

A certain standard of luxury and comfort is what one expects from a Four Seasons hotel – and this one located between the old-town walls and the waterside promenade fulfills all expectations. Entering the lobby, guests are greeted by marble splendor gleaming beneath crystal chandeliers, and from their generously proportioned rooms, they enjoy a magnificent view of the city. All rooms offer every comfort and convenience and feature exquisite details, such as a golden Queen Anne washbasin, and also a television set in the bathroom. In other words, the hotel reflects the typical – slightly zany – Baku mix of the historical and the modern.
11 a.m.: Yarat Contemporary Art Center

The fine arts are sometimes thought to have a hard time of it in majority Muslim countries, even in a secular state like Azerbaijan. Nevertheless, a modern art scene picking up on European trends has been growing in Baku for some years now. It has found a home at the Yarat Contemporary Art Centre, which was founded by the artist Aida Mahmudova in 2011. The Yarat occupies two former shipyard maintenance buildings, where it showcases both Azerbaijani and international artists with some fantastic exhibitions and installations.

1 p.m.: İçəri Şəhər, the old town

Baku’s old-town quarter is a tourist magnet and also provides a counterpoint to the city’s modern architecture. Sections of the ensemble date from the 11th century. Encircled by defensive walls, the old town has been a listed UNESCO World Heritage Site since 2000. Its best-known structures include the 12th-century Maiden Tower and the Shirvanshah Palace at the top of the hill. At peak times, hundreds of tourists from all over the world stroll through the winding streets and alleyways, where niqabs are as frequent a sight as miniskirts. Restaurants and cafes serve local specialties, and among them, the Qaynana (Kichik Qala, Tel: +994-70/43 40 013, to the website) deserves a special recommendation for its amazing vegetarian appetizers: hummus, baba ganoush and gavurdag (tomatoes with finely chopped nuts and pomegranate juice).

The building, which was officially opened in 2012, takes on a constantly changing face depending on the observer’s perspective and the prevailing light conditions. The center houses a museum of Azerbaijan’s history and the life work of Heydar Aliyev (1923-2003), who was the country’s president from 1993 to 2003. In the days of Soviet rule, the promenade skirting Baku Bay was short and rather shabby. These days, thousands of Bakuvians stroll along the magnificent corniche extending between the Olympic swimming pool in the south and the White City in the northeast. Roughly ten kilometers in length, the promenade takes you past the Crystal concert hall, the Baku Eye, the Deniz Mall that calls to mind the architecture of Sydney Opera House, and the Port Baku Towers. The promenade is particularly impressive at dusk, when the three Flame Towers’ ingenious illuminations appear to set them on fire. A string of restaurants lines the promenade – or if you prefer, you can retrace your steps to the Four Seasons Hotel – also on the promenade – and dine at the Zafferano, the hotel’s own restaurant (fourseasons.com).
